Mr.
Dipl.-Ing. Bernhard HEIDEN

July 20, 2005

Dear Mr. Heiden,

We attest the following:

You have successfully completed your studies at Graz University of Technology on March 12, 2002, and have been graduated "Diplom-Ingenieur", abbreviation "Dipl.-Ing."

Your studies have been regulated by the Federal Act of Technical Sciences BGBl.No 373/1990. The studies according to those regulations are diploma studies, i.e. graduate studies, which lead to a scientific-oriented qualification and which are a prerequisite for admission to doctorate studies.

The "Diplom-Ingenieur" has in Austria all academic and civil effects which are derived from academic degrees. The diploma on the award of this academic degree certifies that you have completed a university education according to directive 89/48/EEC.

Due to international standards, the study which you have completed is a "graduate study"; the degree is comparable to a Master's Degree (in your case: Master of Science).

Yours faithfully,

Anna-Maria Moisi
